

THE SEWELL C. BIGGS

COLLECTION OF AMERICAN ART

A CATALOGUE

The Pirate by Frank E. Schoonover (1877-1972), 1911, oil on canvas.

Silver sauceboat made about 1770 by John David (1736-1798) of Philadelphia for Caesar Rodney (ca. 1720-1784) of Dover, Delaware.

Two from a set of seven walnut chairs made for Vincent Lookerman, Dover, Delaware in the mid-18th-century.

One of the most important surveys of American art in the Delaware Valley ever published

Whether your interest is American or regional history, decorative or fine arts, this beautifully illustrated and authoritative compendium of important American art is a necessary addition to your library. Some fifty-two authors engagingly bring to light an extraordinary collection assembled over the last sixty years by Delaware's visionary collector Sewell C. Biggs. Not only is it a landmark look at American art from its colonial roots through the mid-twentieth-century, but also it surveys 125 years of remarkable contributions by Delaware artists to the national arts scene.
